TENTH REGIMENT INFANTRY.

THE Tenth Regiment Connecticut Volunteers was recruited at Camp Buckingham, Hartford, and left for Annapolis, Md., October 31, 1861.

It was attached to General Burnside's command, and was engaged at the battle of Roanoke Island, on the 8th of February, 1862; and notwithstanding it was the first battle in which it took part, both officers and men exhibited great coolness and sterling bravery.

Colonel Charles L. Russell, the brave and efficient commander, was killed at the head of his regiment, while gallantly leading it to the charge.

Colonel Russell was formerly attached to the Second Regiment, as Adjutant; in which position he demonstrated his fitness for his position, and won the love and esteem of the rank and file by his uniform courtesy and kindness, as well as the confidence and respect of his superior officers, for his military ability.

Lt. Col. Albert W. Drake, succeeded to the command of the regiment, was commissioned as Colonel, February 8, 1862, and died of disease caused by exhaustion, June 5, 1862.

Adjutant General Williams, in his Annual Report, dated April 1, 1868, remarks "that no regiment in the field, has seen more active service, better sustained the reputation of Connecticut troops, or met with greater loss of officers, than the Tenth. •

Colonel Ira W. Pettibone, who succeeded Colonel Drake, was compelled by ill-health, to resign; and was in turn succeeded by Major John L. Otis, as commander.

On the 14th of March, 1862, the regiment was again in battle at Newbern, N. C., and met with a loss of twenty-three (23) killed and wounded. Again on the 14th of December, it participated in the battle of Kinston, N. C., and met with a total loss of one hundred and six (106) officers and men.

Lieut. Colonel Leggett, in his official report of the battle, states that the regiment captured at one time, more than fifty of the enemy. On the 16th of December, it was engaged in the battle of Whitehall, N. C., loss not reported.

After the battle of Seabrook Island, S. C., March 28, 1863, the regiment was engaged in the usual routine incident to field life, until the Siege of Charleston, S. C., from July 28th to October 25th, 1863.

In December following it took an active part in the battle of St. Augustine, Fla., with a total loss of twenty-two (22) men.

On the 18th of April, 1864, it proceeded to Hilton Head, S. C., thence by transport to Fort Monroe, Va., and were disembarked at Gloucester Point, where it was joined by the re-enlisted veterans who had returned from veteran furlough.

At this time, the camp and garrison equipage of the regiment, together with the regimental and company records, were ordered stored at Norfolk, Va.; but while on board transport, were sunk, and became a total and irreparable loss.

On the 7th of May, the regiment was again in action at Walthall Junction, Va., and from the 13th to the 17th, inclusive, participated in the battle of Drury's Bluff, when they were called upon to support the 1st Connecticut Light Battery, which was ordered to take up its position on the left of the regiment, in order that it might be more secure from the enemy's sharpshooters.

In his official report of this battle, Colonel Plaisted, commanding the Brigade, speaks of the Tenth Connecticut, as follows: "Of the Tenth, I need hardly say more, than that it fully sustained the splendid reputation it has hitherto borne; for steady and soldierly behavior, under the most trying circumstances too, entirely new to them, (for never before were their backs turned to the enemy,) it may have been equaled, but never surpassed. Under a fire in which eighteen men fell from the left of the regiment in almost as many seconds, not a soldier spoke a word, or moved a heel from the alignment. Too much credit cannot be accorded to Colonel Otis, for his self possession under such a fire, and the skillful manner in which he handled his regiment."

The space allotted to a Summary, in this work, will not permit of a detailed account of each separate engagement, in which the regiment participated, and to chronicle in detail, the many battles and the active service of the Tenth Connecticut, would require a volume of itself.

The regiment continued in service in Virginia, until its final muster-out, August 25, 1865, and participated in no less than fourteen engagements, between June 16, 1864, and the Spring of 1865. To say that throughout the whole time, it sustained its reputation for bravery and heroic endurance, would be but faint praise for the gallant deeds performed and the pen of the historian will find ample material for its exercise, in portraying the deeds of this regiment.

Originally, the Regiment numbered nine hundred and ninety-six (996) men; the number of recruits borne on its rolls is eight hundred and forty-eight (848,) and the number of re-enlisted veterans, was two hundred and eighty (280); making a total of two thousand one hundred and twenty-four (2,124) men credited to the organization.
